

The Latin American Studies major affords the student a wide range of career opportunities in the United States and abroad. This multidisciplinary degree combines study of Latin American and Latinx literature, film, politics, history, and culture.

Structured electives (32 credits total):

Society and Culture:

at other colleges and universities, including through the NorthWest5 consortium exchange and/or while studying abroad.