Cost Matrix for WU Sponsored Study Abroad Programs

Use this document to understand the typical costs associated with summer, semester and year WU Sponsored Off-Campus Programs. Please contact the OIE with any questions – oieadvising@willamette.edu.

What is a Willamette Sponsored Program?

All the programs listed below are Willamette Sponsored Programs. Willamette programs are facilitated by Willamette University, a third-party provider, a consortium to which Willamette belongs, or in conjunction with other universities as part of bilateral exchanges agreements. Programs may be identified as Salem-based or PNCA programs and some programs allow for students from either campus to participate. Please check with an OIE advisor for specific program availability.

Semester and Year Program Costs

You may use your Willamette, federal, state and local financial aid for WU program costs. Costs are distributed as follows:

- Tuition : Your WU student account will be billed WU tuition.
- Housing and Meals : See the columns titled “Cost Billed to Your WU Student Account”, “Housing” and “Meals” for more information. Students pay the cost of housing and meals to one of the following: a) pay Willamette and then receive housing and meals abroad, b) pay the host university or program directly, c) to a private landlord or purchase and prepare own food, or d) a combination (such as pay room to Willamette and pay for food abroad).
- Additional costs are very important to consider! Additional costs may include, but are not limited to:
  - passport - renewal or new
  - airfare and travel to/from the program site
  - visa and/or residency permit costs (when applicable) - this may include application fees and postage
  - domestic travel to apply for visa (when applicable)
  - additional health insurance, depending on individual program structure and individual student needs
  - travel insurance (optional)
  - local transportation (when applicable)
  - Generally, students spend more out-of-pocket money while abroad than during a typical semester at Willamette. These costs are usually associated with extra leisure travel, cost-of-living differences, eating out, entertainment, and purchasing gifts and souvenirs. If you would like more information about specific costs of the items mentioned above and/or the general affordability of study abroad, please contact an advisor in the OIE.
  - See the Willamette University Sponsored Programs Cost Matrix for Special Cost Considerations specific to your program(s).
- Study Abroad Acceptance Deposit : [paused for 2025-26] Non-refundable deposit is due when you accept your placement to participate on a Willamette Sponsored Program. The deposit applies towards the term of your program abroad.

Health Insurance Information: WU REQUIREMENT: ALL students must have health insurance that covers them at their off-campus program location. PROGRAM OR HOST COUNTRY REQUIREMENT: Some programs or host countries require specific insurance while others do not. See the column titled “Insurance Information”. Students should also visit the health insurance page on the OIE website for tips on assessing coverage needs.

Please see the Office of International Education’s website for more details on program types, program descriptions, credit and application information, including application deadlines.
