the timing of course offerings in the College of Business, Pacific Northwest College of Art, and School of Computing and Information Sciences, and will also facilitate future program development that draws from across the University's colleges and curricula.

The University's unified bell schedule was launched in Academic Year 2023-2024, and emerged from nearly two years of collaboration as college- and university-level "Common Hours" that are designed to facilitate meetings, co-curricular activities, speakers, and events. College Common Hours are at the programming discretion of each college or school, whereas University Common Hours should be preserved for University-level committees, meetings, events, or other functions.

Please note that there are some program-specific deviations to the Academic Calendar, which include the low-residency MFA programs in PNCA, program offerings at the Executive Development Center, and inter- and winter-session courses for students in the JD program. Requests for course offerings, or pedagogical reasons, for exceptions must be submitted in
